GOODWILL GOES GLAM!

STORY BY JOCELYN LANSANGAN / PHOTOS BY LAWRENCE TABUDLO

The 13th annual Goodwill Goes GLAM! event will be held July 18-20 at Neal S. Blaisdell Exhibition Hall. It kicks off with a fashion show (themed “RE-WERK”), which was curated by Crystal Pancipanci, founder of PANCI Style LLC and the show’s creative director and producer.

For the past six months, she has been thrifting at Goodwill to “reimagine and ‘RE-WERK’ this year’s show into a colorful fashion trend showcase, curated and 100% thrifted, but ‘PANCI-fied’ with a touch of Goodwill glam,” she says.

The looks from the runway will be available for purchase at the GLAM! Sale, which opens immediately following the show and continues July 19-20. Patrons can browse through top Goodwill finds, including designer fashions and accessories, vintage housewares, and one-of-a-kind collectibles.

“This year’s Goodwill Goes GLAM! is more than a fashion show; it’s a statement about the future of fashion,” says Pancipanci, who curated Goodwill Goes GLAM!’s first-ever show in 2012. “It’s about embracing the past, reimagining it, and being inspired to create and being excited about what you find.”

Adds Kelley Cho, Goodwill Hawai‘i director of public relations and communications, “Goodwill Goes GLAM! serves many purposes for Goodwill Hawai‘i but first and foremost, the goal is to raise money and boost awareness for our nonprofit mission — to help people with employment barriers reach their full potential and become self-sufficient.”

Proceeds from the event will be reinvested into Goodwill Hawai‘i to support its free job-training and employment programs that help thousands of residents in need each year.
